

ReNew

May/June 2012

C A N A D A

The Infrastructure Magazine

- + The Case for Transit P3s
- + Why Some Cities are Sick of LEED

Smarter Ways to Feed the CONSTRUCTION BEAST

10

34

18

28

24

ReNew

CANADA

The Infrastructure Magazine

MAY/JUNE 2012

FEATURE

- 10 Rubble Rouser Can recycled aggregates help lessen the need for new quarries?
By Kerry Freek
- 18 Label Maker Stouffville, Ontario will soon be home to one of North America’s greenest healthcare buildings—but it won’t be LEED-certified. Why some green builders may be moving on from the rating system.
By Mira Shenker

TRANSPORTATION

- 24 In Transit Cities turn to new financing models to deliver much-needed transit corridors.
By Mira Shenker
- 28 Ain’t Got Time to Build a Fast Train What’s stopping Canada from embracing high-speed rail?
By Douglas McCallum

DEPARTMENTS

- 4 Editor’s Note The Status Quo Sucks.
By Mira Shenker
- 16 Re: The Law Changes to Ontario’s Building Code could mean fewer glass buildings in city skylines.
By Steve Kemp
- 21 Canadians at Work EDC helps local companies export their healthcare expertise.
- 22 Panorama Vancouver’s glimmering sulphur piles reflect more than the sun; they’re a sign of Canada’s growing commodities market.
- 34 ReFinance How to decide whether to rehabilitate or demolish aging buildings.
By Susan Anson
- 37 ReLocate Jobs gained and lost in the industry.
- 38 ReEvents FCM’s Sustainable Communities Conference, ROMA/OGRA Conference, and GLOBE 2012.
- 42 Closing Shot Water and Fighter Jets.
By Todd Latham

FRONT

- 5 Letters EVs and Canada’s Energy Future.
- 6 Feedback We polled our online readers, asking: Is Ontario’s budget on point?